

The background of the entire page is a collage of abstract, hand-drawn sketches. These sketches feature various organic and geometric shapes in bright colors like pink, green, blue, orange, and purple. The lines are bold and expressive, often overlapping and creating a sense of movement and depth. Some areas have more detailed line work, while others are more solid in color.

Our concept is mental health, focusing on borderline personality disorder. We have been exploring the three main episodes a person with this condition would go thorough in an abstract way. These episodes are manic, neutral and depressive. We all began using images from the Nam June Paik exhibition at the Tate Modern in London. Shape, form and colour has been taken from these images to create our sketchbook pages. We have been focusing on using bright colours instead of dark ones which are usually associated with mental health, by making it an 'inclusive experience' for everyone!
